Legal aspects

This is where we explain our legal basis for processing your information. When you use someone's information in a business, you need to have a legal reason for doing it, and you then need to state this clearly.

For an information service such as a newsletter or when you enter one of our competitions, or even if you come to one of our events, we process your data using legitimate interest i.e. you are able to access lots of information and services in exchange for giving us your details, and our relationship is one where the balance of benefit is in your favour. You always have a choice about us managing your data this way and can opt out of processing under this basis at any time. However, in the case of competitions, this could make matters complicated.

Where you provide data in the course of a contract agreement, we process your data under contract, i.e. your data is necessary for the fulfilment of the service. Any additional contact, i.e. telling you about another product or service closely related to the product or service you have contracted is managed under legitimate interest.

We will always make it as easy as possible for you to opt out of stuff you don't want, providing it doesn't restrict our ability to provide you with the thing you have requested.

Profiling - sometimes we use little parts of your information to target the messages we send you, for instance, we might use your location to send you details of a competition. This is normally done manually or via an automatic notification service managed by us.

How long we keep your data. Sometimes a legal authority may require us to keep it for a certain amount of time. Otherwise we determine the length of time we keep your data, based on why you gave it to us in the first place. For example, if you visited one of our events, we'd keep your information, to let you know about the next one.

When we don't need to keep your data anymore, we do one of three things:

- we erase it
- we keep a small amount because we have to, and keep it safe, sometimes disguising it.
- If you say you don't want to hear from us ever again, we keep the minimum amount information to make sure we leave you alone.

Children's Data:

We do not knowingly collect or store any personal information of children under the age of 16, because the mechanisms whereby we collect personal information are not applicable to this age group.

Making changes to the information you give us

You can rectify, erase, object to or restrict the way your information is handled without undue delay. You can also ask to access the data we hold on you.

We're working on ways to make it easier for you to review and correct the information that we hold about you. In the meantime, if you need to change any details or want to get in touch with us about anything to do with your information email us at www.kentfurthereducation@gmail.com.

Who we share data with

We do not and will not, sell or share your data at any time to anyone else for their own marketing purposes.

- Tell you about upcoming events
- Direct you to the places where you can book tickets
- Keep you up to date with what is happening at the events, including sending you the latest news.
